Invitation

On behalf of the IAATI Australasian Branch committee and our 2010 Seminar Partners – Suncorp Insurance, National Motor Vehicle Theft Reduction Council, DataDots, F.I.R.E.S, Maurice J. Kerrigan & Associates, 1300-RECORD, ATI Investigative Services, CSI Investigations, Visual Analysis and Pickles Auctions - I extend to you a warm invitation to attend our 17th Annual Training Seminar in Brisbane, Queensland between 28 February – 3 March 2010. This promises to be another exciting seminar with leading presenters.

The Seminar will include a blend of topics including:

- National and International vehicle theft trends and initiatives
- Offender trends in by-passing factory immobilizers
- Police presentations from Queensland, New South Wales and Victoria Police
- Current forensic vehicle examination methods
- Arson related vehicle thefts
- Crash Scene Analysis
- Insurance Ombudsman Service

I am also pleased to announce that the seminar will also provide an opportunity for us to hear from IAATI's 1st International Vice President, Det. Chris McDonald. He is a certified instructor from Baltimore who has taught extensively throughout the world. During the seminar Det. McDonald will discuss the importance of the relationship between Law Enforcement and our private partners the Insurance Industry.

Other highlights during the seminar will be the formal dinner on the Monday night which will include the announcement of the 2010 Australasian Branch Awards. In respect to the Branch Awards I am pleased to again welcome DataDot Technologies, who sponsors of one of the awards.

The continuing support by these companies of the awards has ensured that a number of highly skilled and devoted individuals achieve the recognition for the commitment to vehicle theft investigation and prevention initiatives. recognition for the commitment to vehicle theft investigation and prevention initiatives.

Finally, the seminar will provide you with the opportunity to renew interstate and international friendships and develop networks with professionals that you can continue to use throughout your career. I look forward to seeing you in Brisbane for what promises to be a stimulating and entertaining seminar.

Mark Bennedick

Australasian Branch President, IAATI

International keynote speaker - Chris McDonold

Det. Chris McDonold is a 21-year police veteran employed by the Baltimore County Police Department; Baltimore, Maryland. For the past 14 ½ years he has been assigned to the Regional Auto Theft Team (RATT), which comprises members from Baltimore County, Baltimore City, and Maryland State Police. RATT has played an important role in helping to decrease vehicle theft throughout the Baltimore region by 50% since the unit's inception. RATT has arrested over 11,000 people since their inception, recovering over 12,000 vehicles valued at well over $85 million dollars.

Det. McDonold has received two citations from the Governor of Maryland, a Superintendent's Salute from the Maryland State Police, three Unit Citations from the Baltimore County Police Department and four Unit Citations from the Baltimore City Police Department. He has also received a Bronze Star for Valor and two Commendation awards. In addition, he was the recipient of the Baltimore County Police Foundation Officer of the Year Award in 1999. RATT has won several national awards for their exceptional work; including an Award of Merit from the National Associations of Counties, and three Vehicle Theft Awards from the International Associations of Chiefs of Police/National Insurance Crime Bureau (1996, 2000 & 2001).

Det. McDonold has been a member of IAATI since 1995 and is currently the 1st International Vice-President with the IAATI, past president of IAATI's Southeast Chapter and secretary for the Maryland/DC Anti-Car Theft Committee.

Det McDonold is a certified instructor through the Maryland Police Training Commission and has taught extensively at local, regional, and federal/international levels. He has been instrumental in creating training programs for both basic and advanced investigators, the insurance industry, the judicial system and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), and is recognized internationally for his training endeavours. Det. McDonold has co authored two investigative manuals that have become the source books for both the (Level I) Certified Investigator and (Level II) Advanced Investigator tests. Chris was also instrumental in the selection/creation of the materials and test for the Master Investigator level (Level III), which was completed in 2009 and is available to IAATI members. In addition, his expertise is sought after by many organizations, such as the federal Vehicle Component Part Label Committee.

Who is IAATI?

The International Association of Auto Theft Investigators (I.A.A.T.I.) is a non-profit organisation formed to provide professional training, education and support to assist professionals involved in the detection, investigation and reduction of vehicle theft. The Association was established in America in 1952 and has approximately 4,200 members in 35 countries. The Australasian Branch was established in 1993 and has approximately 328 associated members.

Membership is made up of representatives from police services (investigators, analysts, and forensic staff), insurers, private investigators, vehicle registration authorities, vehicle manufacturers and others with a legitimate interest in vehicle theft investigation, prevention and education. The Australasian Branch conducts an Annual Training Seminar to help members keep abreast of the latest trends, issues, products and initiatives throughout Australasia and the world. The 2010 Training Seminar is our 17th Annual Seminar. It promises to be of benefit to anybody with an interest in reducing the problem of motor vehicle theft.

Who should attend IAATI seminars

It is anticipated that the 2010 Seminar will be one of the best Australasian Branch seminars to date and is likely to attract approximately 120 local, national and international delegates. IAATI seminars traditionally attract a broad cross section including:

- Police investigators, intelligence analysts and scientific staff
- Insurance - fraud & investigation staff, claims & underwriting Managers, Intelligence analysts
- Private investigators
- Vehicle registration authorities - Inspectors and policy makers
- Crime prevention and fraud specialists
- Academics and researchers
- Motor Trades - Policy makers
- Vehicle Manufacturers
- Forensic Locksmiths

The Seminar Program

The seminar organising committee has worked hard to create an interesting program that will be of interest to its broad membership and a full copy of the program is presented on pages 6 and 7 of this brochure. A sample of the presenter who will be at the seminar include:

- Det Chris McDonold (Baltimore, USA) – “Comprehensive Approach to Combating Auto Theft”.
